CHAMPS ARE SLAUGHTERED

Locals Batted Like Fiends and Carried off Game Easily.

PITCHERS LOOKED ALIKE.

Budd Relieved by Wilkinson Who Was Unable to Stop the Scoring

The Belle Vernon aggregation of base ball talent was literally slaughtered by the locals at Atheletic park yesterday, the final score showing that the cheesty champs had been walked over to the tune of 15 to 6. A shake up has just taken place on the Belle Vernon team and practically a new lineup from that which faced the locals last, represented them yesterday, but the showing the new team made leaves the impression that Belle Vernon "got in wrong" in selecting her new ones.

Budd opened up on the firing line for the visitors but it took the local club swingers just four innings to put him to the bad. Wilkinson was then called on but the locals seemed to be in a swatting humor and his delivery suffered even as that of his predecessor had suffered. Loose fielding on the part of the visiting players was responsible for some of the runs, on the other hand Monessen fielded brilliantly. On the rubber for Monessen was one Bolig and for six innings he held the visitors runless. They succeeded in scoring in the seventh and eighth however when Bolig gave way to "Chuck" Shutterly who finished the game.

Monessen started the game by scoring three in the first inning adding three more in the fourth and from then on it was only a question of how often the local runners would circle the bases. The score:

MRS. WARRICK WOULDN'T MOVE

So Constable Watt Will Have to Eject Goods From Building.

A clash between landlord and tenant came in the case of Dr. Dillinger against Mrs. R. G. Warrick to recover possession of the former's property on Donner avenue. Shuster & Reed are agents for Dillinger and on Jan. 1 served the tenant legal notice to vacate the premises. This she refused to do and later another notice was served and Mrs. Warrick protested against moving for the reason that she could not get a suitable place.

The agents then gave her thirty days longer, but at the expiration of the time possession was still not forthcoming. Suit was brought before Squire Watkins and a decision rendered in favor of the plaintiff. But Mrs. Warrick refused to give possession claiming that she had the premises for another year under the old agreement. Today a writ of ejectment was placed in the hands of Constable Watt and he was authorized to remove the goods from the house and levy on the same according to law to obtain expenses.

WERE MARRIED LAST NIGHT.

Squire A. N. Shuster performed his first marrige ceremony at his office last night uniting for life the lives of Mr. Charles Thomas of Donora and Miss Vazzetti of Schoonmaker avenue, Monessen.

Promptly at 9 o'clock the affair took place in the private rooms of the Justice and was witnessed by high Constable Watt and Tax Collector John Reed. Mr. Shuster performed his duties with that ease and grace of dignity which is characteristic of an official of many years experience. No clergical costume was donned for the occasion as it was the request of the contracting parties that the ceremony be delivered in the most delicate form. The bride and groom will go to housekeeping in Monessen.

HOG MONEY.

Origin of the Curious Old Brass Coins of Bermuda.

"Hog money" is the name by which the brass money which began to be struck in Bermuda in 1650 came to be known. On one face of it was a hog, on the other a ship of that period. These old coins are very rare and highly prized by collectors.

The history of this device is curious and interesting. A Spanish vessel, commanded by Juan Bermudez, on its way to Cuba with a cargo of hogs, was wrecked there This was in 1515. Later in the same century, when the English discovered this land, they found a country inhabited by hogs.

It is also interesting to note that the English discovered it in the same way as the Spaniards. An English ship was wrecked there. Is it any wonder that the treacherous coast got from Spanish and English alike the name of Devil's Land? Yet it is one of the most beautiful coasts in the world, and it has been claimed that in brilliancy Mediterranean effects are not at all equal to those of Bermuda.

Bermuda is said to be the island of Shakespeare's "Tempest." The strange noises which mariners heard coming from this island, and which they did not then know were produced by hogs, caused them to say that it was haunted and to report weird things of it.—Pearson's

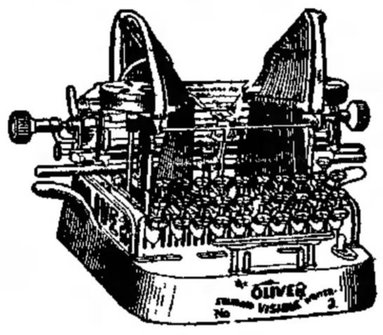
It's the Oliver—the Standard Visible Writer.

The Oliver Typewriter is just like an athlete stripped for a race



It is free from unnecessary multiplicity of wires and springs

No net work of flimsy keys to get tied into hard knots

The nimble fingered stenographer can put talk into type with this machine just as rapidly as she takes your dictation.

For no matter how swiftly she writes, she can see just what she's doing

The keyboard is so wonderfully responsive to the touch of the finger tips that speed comes without effort.

The factors that make for speed are its visible writing, its light, elastic key-touch, and it's all 'round simplicity. It has the fewest possible wearing points, and it prints with a downward stroke.

The OLIVER Typewriter

In Cupid's Chariot

By Michael James

Copyright, 1905, by E. C. Parcells

"Shades of Cleopatra," ejaculated Covington to himself, "it's a woman, and," he added, "a mighty pretty one too!"

The sample room of the Hotel Wentworth was filled with neatly arranged dry goods samples, among which the young woman moved, calm and confident. Behind her trotted old Epton, the best customer he had in Wentworth. The little circle embracing each corner of the old man's thin lips showed that he was pleased too. "She's sold him, or I'm a Dutchman," was Covington's thought as he backed out of the door he had so airily opened a moment before, "and that means I've got to work, for the man, woman or child who can sell Epton under a year's acquaintance is a wonder. Well, it's the back sample room for mine and a hustle to snare the rest of them before she gets done with Epton."

His eye caught a big black sample case in the hall. "Jim Dunkley's trunk! I'll bet a dollar booze got the best of Jim, and they've given this woman his territory."

Ignoring the grinning clerk, who had seen Covington advance on the sample room like a conquering hero, he scanned the register. Yes, there it was. "Miss Cecil Gardner, Chicago." The signature was very like the young lady herself—trim, neat, capable and yet almost appealingly feminine.

As he laid out his samples in the poorly lighted back sample room Covington pondered resentfully upon the depravity of the firm of Stern & Sulzmann which would fire good, easy picking like Jim Dunkley and give his place to a woman—what was worse, to a woman who knew her business. Slamming the door viciously, Covington started out to round up the other dry goods men of the town.

He returned in half an hour, even more resentful than before. Miss Gardner evidently believed in the early bird theory, for she had already sold good bills to all three dealers Covington met Epton on the hotel steps. He knew the case was hopeless, but he greeted his former customer cordially. "Sorry I can't do any business with you this time, Mr. Covington," said the merchant when the preliminaries had been disposed of, "but Miss Gardner had what I wanted You are just a trifle too late." Covington felt like kicking the big S & S sample case that leered at him in the hallway

THERE WAS A CRASH.

When Covington tossed his grip into the bus after dinner he found Miss Gardner already ensconced in a corner of the vehicle.

During the ride to the railway station he discovered by oblique glances that she was even prettier than he had at first imagined. Her profile was good, her complexion beautiful and real, her lips superlatively pretty. "Tommyrot!" snorted Covington to himself when he saw where his reflections had led him. He began planning how to outwit Miss Gardner when they reached Essig, for he knew that she surely would stop there.

Experience told at Essig, and Covington sold big bills to the two dealers in the thriving little town. It was Miss Gardner's turn to depart without an order. There was something more than the mere indifference of a stranger in her manner when they were bus companions once more, this time for the evening train to Tilton. The atmosphere was so chilly that Covington felt like blowing on his fingers.

The first day was a counterpart of most of the days that followed for two months. Occasionally Covington's side trips to small towns which Miss Gardner did not make would keep them out of each other's way for a time. Soon Covington found himself planning to avoid these side trips by having the customers come at the expense of the house to the larger points on his route. "Other fellows do it," he argued. "It makes good feeling to give them a little holiday, and it doesn't cost much more than my livery hire." He never once admitted that a growing inclination to see as much as possible of Miss Gardner had anything to do with the matter.

The situation certainly had its drawbacks. They became acquainted, of course. Miss Gardner told him of her first employment in Stern & Sulzmann's as a stenographer; how gradually she had been detailed to wait on the smaller customers who came to the city for their goods and how the firm, quick to note her natural ability as a saleswoman, had given her Dunkley's place on trial when that gentleman's failings could no longer be overlooked.

But there were no pleasant little chats when Miss Gardner failed in a town. Between stations on these unlucky days Covington, with the uncomfortable feeling that it was cowardice to make war on a woman, usually occupied a seat in the smoker, while a very discouraged Miss Gardner did fancy work or read; hence, after a particularly disastrous day, he saw a tear fall on to the page of his fair opponent's book. He laid down, dagrantly and completely, for the next four towns, only awakening to the pass his chivalry had brought him when the house, in a sarcastic letter, suggested that he was out after orders and not on a pleasure trip, as he seemed to imagine.

"It's all right to sit there in the office and 'call' a fellow," he mused bitterly, "but I'd like to see one of them up against the same situation. It isn't like having a man to deal with. A man will grin and buy a drink when you do him good and hard, but he'll lay awake nights until he gets back at you. He doesn't go away and cry all by himself as if he hadn't a friend on earth I'm not doing any business, and I know it, but if I let myself out Cecil"—he always thought of her as Cecil—"will lose her job. And if I don't let myself out I'll lose mine, I guess." He rubbed his homely boyish face in perplexity. "I'm sure I can't see the finish."

Dick Harpin's bus at Barton Center was the factor which provided a violent but satisfactory solution to Covington's problem. Harpin's bus was a standing jest among the traveling fraternity. It was as old apparently as the wonderful one hoss shay, but its age was not so honorable, for the bus was rickety and disfigured.

It was a nippy February morning when Miss Gardner and Covington climbed into the bus for the long, cold ride uptown. The driver unhooked the weight strap and stepped back At that precise moment the keen wind whirled a piece of paper into the faces of the restive horses.

Harpin grabbed at the reins and missed as the animals leaped forward. A man ran into the center of the street. They swerved from his foolish, waving arms, and there was a crash. The wheels on one side of the bus had struck a telephone pole and been torn off.

At the first alarm Covington tried to open the door, but it stuck. With two wheels gone, he saw that few seconds would elapse before the vehicle would overturn. His one idea was to protect the girl who, pale and terror stricken, sat opposite him. He seized her in his arms, shielding her with his body, as the bus, swayed wildly at the heels of the galloping horses, toppled over.

When the team was stopped a block away they found Covington beneath the wreck of the bus, cut and bruised somewhat, but conscious. Miss Gardner, uninjured, was still clasped in his arms, and his lips were against her cheek

Covington's orders have regained their former satisfactory size and volume, and Dunkley has been given his old place by Stern & Sulzmann. Miss Gardner has resigned. It's to be in June, and any woman will tell you that four months is hardly time enough to prepare for a wedding.

Various Views of Charlotte Corday.

The contemporaries of Charlotte Corday, said Dr. Cabanes, have thought that "her complexion had the transparency of milk, the carnation of roses and the velvetiness of peaches." They have thought also that "she was not pretty. Her face was hard, insolent and as if marked with erysipelas." One witness says that "Mlle Corday was not handsome, but her expression was so sweet, so sweet!" Some say that she was tall rather than small; others say that she was tall; many say that she was decidedly small Her passport makes her height five feet one inch Her hair, according to an official document, was chestnut; according to another official document it was blond; Mme Hauer, wife of the painter who made Charlotte's portrait, says that her hair was "cendre"—that is, mouse or drab or ash colored Abbe Dimone, who had a lock of her hair, says that it was "neither red nor 'cendre.'" Dr. Cabanes says decisively that she was beautiful, of average height, and that her hair was chestnut. History, founded on authentic documents, says that her expression was sweet and sour; that her complexion was of milk and roses and marked at the same time as by erysipelas, and she was of tall, small and medium height; that she was blond, dark and neither dark nor blond. History is a science.

The Wonderful Parasol Ant.

The greatest known curiosity of insect life, as far as habits are concerned at least, is to be found in the queer "parasol" or "umbrella" ant, so common in all parts of tropical America from Texas to Venezuela. The common name by which the creature is known has been bestowed because of a queer habit this species of ant has of stripping certain kinds of trees and shrubs of their foliage and carrying the leaves to their nests. An army of these ants which have been off on a foraging expedition present the queerest sight imaginable as they march in long columns by twos, fours and sixes, each holding the stem of a leaf in his jaws, the leaf itself shading the little insect's body like a parasol does the face and shoulders of a lady. The early naturalists imagined that these ants carried leaves for the sole purpose of protecting themselves against the rays of the tropical sun, but investigation shows that they have another use for the bits of green they gather. The leaves are only wanted as soil upon which to grow a certain species of fungi of which the parasol ant is very fond.

WILL BUILD NEW HOMES

W. H. Wagoner, Boss Roller at Pittsburg Steel, Will Let Contract in a Few Days.

Two more handsome new brick dwellings will be erected on McKee avenue near Sixth street this summer. A few weeks ago Supt. George Nash and W. H. Wagoner purchased two lots on McKee avenue from the East Side Land Co., the sale being made through the agency of Newcomer & Wolf. The lots were purchased for home sites and both gentlemen at once ordered plans and specifications drawn for brick dwellings and as soon as the architect is through with his work the contract will be let.

Mr. Wagoner's house will have ten rooms and will be modernly finished throughout. Mr. Nash will not build such a large house, but every detail will be complete The houses will both be solid brick and of the highest type of architecture. These two beautiful homes will add greatly to the appearance of our town.

PROSPERITY FOR STEEL COMPANY.

The Carnegie Steel Company has the greatest tonnage of unfilled orders on its books in the history of the company. This refers not to contracts, but to actual orders on which shipment can be made. During a period when on the surface trade has appeared to be dull, manufacturers have been surprized at the volumns of business which rolls in day after day and week after week.

There is nothing spectacular about the booking of steel business, through the reformation caused by the establishments of uniform and steady prices. There is no cutting and there are no rushes to cover; orders are placed just as consumers find they need the material.

Most of the agricultural implement makers have already started their plants and others will within the next fortnight Their season begins nominally July 1, but usually they do not start making stock before August or September. The present is the earliest start on record and indicates that a very optimistic view is held of the prospective buying power of the agricultural sections.

Lost Girl Returned.

After three days of anxiety and worry over the misterious disappearance of his 12-year-old daughter Ada R. L. Barnhart, who conducts an electric theatre in Charleroi, has had her restored to him no worse for her exciting experience. Miss Ada was brought back early yesterday morning on the 12:15 car from Pittsburg, where she had been seen by the conductor of a Pittsburg and Charleroi car and brought back.

THE FUNERALS WERE SAD.

The funerals of James Riley and Johnnie Spoigelburg the two little boys who lost their lives Thursday afternoon by being struck by a train were held today, that of the Riley boy taking place this morning while the latter was buried this afternoon.

The remains of the former were taken to McKeesport on the 11:15 train and were interred in the McKeesport cemetery. The latter was taken to Belle Vernon where interment was made.

The services were very impressive. Both were sad funerals, many friends of both families having assembled to pay last tribute to the departed ones. Floral offerings were numerous and beautiful. The members of District No. 125 G. B U attended both funerals as a body, the fathers' of both boys being members of that organization.

The Sistine Chapel, Rome.

The chapel is a beautiful place in itself by its simple and noble proportions as well as by the wonderful architectural decorations of the ceiling, conceived by Michael Angelo as a series of frames for his paintings. Beautiful beyond description, too, is the exquisite marble screen. No one can say certainly who made it. It was perhaps designed by the architect of the chapel himself, Baccio Pontelli There are a few such marvels of unknown hands in the world, and a sort of romance clings to them with an element of mystery that stirs the imagination in a dreamy way far more than the gilded oak tree in the arms of Sixtus IV by which the name of Rovere is symbolized. Sixtus commanded, and the chapel was built. But who knows where Baccio Pontelli lies? Or who shall find the grave where the hand that carved the lovely marble screen is laid at rest?

Eased His Conscience.

"I have examined our public subscription boxes for years," said an officer of a charitable organization, "and in them I have found many queer things The very queerest, though, was last year. On opening a box in a New York railway station I found the gold settings of a necklace, a stomacher, a pair of earrings and five rings. They were magnificent settings, worth a deal of money. I could not help wondering what the stones, which had been roughly torn out of them, were like. These jewels, of course, had been stolen. The settings were now given to charity by the thief. The stones themselves would be recut and sold. Around this gift was a note, which said:

"'Sell for the sick. My conscience goes as far as this.'"

She Knew "Hamlet."

Every one has a point of view, as a serious minded young Englishwoman found out when she propounded to some working girls a scheme for Shakespeare readings. "Hamlet" was to be the first topic, and she dealt out to the girls some copies and awaited comments. The first came from a girl belonging to that immense army of bookfolders so familiar to all frequenters of working girls' clubs. "Oh, I know this well," she said in a superior tone. "Really?" said the gratified teacher. "Is it your favorite play?" The girl looked at her pityingly. "Lor', I ain't read it!" she chuckled. "We stock 'em at our place I've 'ad 'undreds through my 'ands. 'Amlet? Sick to death of 'im!"

Highest Observatory In the World.

The highest scientific station in the world belongs to Harvard. It stands on the summit of Mount Misti, an extinct volcano near Arequipa, in southern Peru. The altitude of this station is 19300 feet. No one lives at the station. No one could live there. The air is too rare and too cold The barometer on the top of Misti often stands at fourteen inches. The thermometer often falls to 25 degrees below zero. Once a month an observer climbs up to the station to take the readings of the instruments. He is two days climbing up and two days climbing down.

Another Story.

An aged Scotch minister, about to marry for the fourth time, was explaining his reason to an elder. "You see, I am an old man now, and I canna expect to be here verra lang. When the end comes I wad like to have some one to close my eyes." The elder nodded and said, "Awell, meenister, I have had twa wives, and baith of them opened mine."—London News.

Base Ball Scraps

Oh what a slaughter.

That was an easy one.

The Champs were badly out classed.

Budd was given a trip to the grove.

The locals batted like a house afire.

Vaughn registered two safe drives yesterday.

Kirkpatric was again all to the candy yesterday.

Those Belle Vernon fielders were tired out chasing flyes.

They all looked alike to us. Wilkinson got his, too.

At times the crowd sang "everybody scores but Belle Vernon."

The Belle Vernon rooters hadn't a word to say after the game.

Belle Vernon got three of their runs off Bolig, and three off Shutterly.

It was the first time the locals have whipped the Champs but they certainly made up for lost time.

Cratty walloped the ball for four wallops, one of which was a double sacker and one a trippie.

McKenra, the ex Champ played a fine game against his old teammates, he got a brace of hits, scored two runs and accepted four chances in left.

Monessen will open up next week with a postponed game at Fayette City, Tuesday they play at California and Thursday at Monongahela.

Kirkpatric and McKenna put up a better game for Monessen than the men who played their old positions on the Belle Vernon team. Maybe the Champs made a mistake in letting them go.

A Boom For Jeannette.

A company is being formed at Jeannette by 75 resident glass blowers of the town for the erection of a window glass factory there. Bruz & Lowry have already donated two acres of ground for the enterprize, which will be located between the rubber work's plant and the town of Jeannette. The company will be a co-operative one and it is said to have been brought about by the introduction of glass machines into the factories there of the Trust glass company. The business men of Jeannette have agreed to contribute $50,000 toward the enterprize and the glass blowers will each take stock to the amount of $500. This matter has been under contemplation for some time and the plant will be built just as soon as possible.

A Hot Game Promised.

The Donora High School team and the local East Ends will cross bats again this afternoon at Athletic Park. The two teams met last Saturday on the Donora grounds and the locals were defeated. As a result they are all the more anxious to turn the tables and the contest should prove quite interesting.

Dear Sir: Please ask your WIFE, DAUGHTER or SISTER to Read MY FREE Offer.

WISE WORDS OF SUFFERERS

From a Woman of Notre Dame, Ind.

I will mail, free of any charge, this Home Treatment with full instructions and history of my own case to any lady suffering with female trouble. You can cure yourself at home without the aid of any physician. It will cost you nothing to give the treatment a trial, and if you decide to continue it will only cost you about 12 cents a week. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. I have nothing to sell Tell other sufferers of it—This is all I ask. It cures all, young or old.

If you feel a bearing-down sensation, sense of impending evil, pain in the back or bowels, creeping feeling up the spine, a desire to cry frequently, hot flashes, weariness, frequent desire to urinate, or if you have Leucorrhea (Whites), Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scant or Painful Periods, Tumors or Growths, address Mrs. M. Summers for the Free Treatment and Full Information. Thousands besides myself have cured themselves with it. I send it in plain wrappers.

TO MOTHERS OF DAUGHTERS I will explain a simple Home Treatment which speedily and effectually cures Leucorrhea, Green Sickness and Painful or Irregular Menstruation in young ladies. It will save you anxiety and expense and save your daughter the humiliation of explaining her troubles to others. Plumpness and health always result from its use.

Wherever you live I can refer you to well known ladies of your own State or county who know and will gladly tell any sufferer that this Home Treatment really cures all diseased conditions of our delicate female organism, thoroughly strengthens relaxed muscles and ligaments which cause displacement, and makes women well. Write today, as this offer may not be made again.

"After using the above recommended Home Treatment but a short time, I was completely cured of Ulceration of the Womb and Soreness of the Ovaries, so that I can now again enjoy life." MRS. MARY McWADE, Box 10, East Sharpsburg, Pa.

"I was under treatment by five doctors who said nothing could be done except to have my organs removed by operation. This I refused to allow, and I am now cured by the use of your Home Treatment, which I shall praise as long as I live." MRS. SADIE McDOWELL, East Downingtown, Pa.

"From my own experience and through observation I know that your celebrated Home Treatment is a successful cure for Leucorrhea, Painful and Irregular Menstruation, and even Falling of the Womb." MRS. D. TOEBELMANN, 1913 So. Fifth St., Philadelphia, Pa.
